

Leadership for Tomorrow

CONFERENCE SERIES

Leadership for Tomorrow: Exploring New Approaches

April 28-30, 2009

Ramada Plaza Hotel, Columbus, Ohio

The Time to Lead is NOW

Registration is now open for the Leadership for Tomorrow Conference.
Visit www.leadershipfortomorrow.osu.edu for more information and to register.

More than ever, your staff and clientele look to you for leadership. In these challenging times, it may be easy to bypass professional development opportunities to focus on day-to-day challenges – but it's also time to cultivate and display strong leadership skills.

At the Leadership for Tomorrow Conference:

- Gain a new perspective on current leadership research and thought processes
- Re-examine your leadership “toolbox”
- Think about your own approach to leadership

Outstanding speakers will address the challenges of today – including time, energy, capacity, and perspective. Breakout sessions will feature research results and practical application examples from leaders throughout the United States. General sessions will feature real-life advice from:

Paul Axtell — president, Contextual Program Designs

Barbara Kunz — president, Battelle Health and Life Sciences Global Business

Dr. Roy Lewicki — professor, Fisher College of Business, Ohio State

Tom Ryan — head coach, Ohio State Wrestling Program

Gene Smith — director, Ohio State Athletics; assistant vice president, Ohio State

Learn new ways to handle today's challenges with focus, resilience, and sensitivity.
Get real answers to help you move forward.

Sponsored by Ohio State University Extension, Gist Endowed Chair for Extension Education and Leadership, Epsilon Sigma Phi — Alpha Eta Chapter, and The Ohio State University College of Food, Agricultural and Environmental Sciences
